On Campus

Monkey

NSYSU is uniquely situated between the mountains and the ocean, which means monkeys occasionally appear on campus. As they are wild animals, please keep a safe distance and do not feed them. A simple guideline is to keep your food hidden and hold your bag securely (see left photo). Avoid carrying food or bags loosely (see right photo).

If you follow these basic rule, you might find them quite charming—check out some videos here!

Fun facts:

1. They are Formosan rock macaques, a species native only to Taiwan.
2. Their typical diet consists of seeds and leaves; bananas are just one of many food sources.
3. At Shoushan Zoo, monkeys aren't kept in cages—instead, the zoo pays efforts to keep them outside to prevent them from stealing food of other animals.

Most food stalls accept cash only. Some vendors displaying the pink sign on the right also accept vouchers; however, we recommend confirming with them beforehand to ensure they do.

Other Options

Instead of using your voucher at the night market, you may also use it at restaurants. Check the list to see if there are any good options near you.
